Handwritten text in Arabic script, arranged in a circular pattern around a central point. The text is densely packed and appears to be a collection of notes or a treatise. The script is in a cursive style, typical of historical Arabic manuscripts. The text is written in black ink on aged, yellowish paper. The circular arrangement suggests a specific organizational structure, possibly related to a calendar or a systematic list of items. The text is surrounded by a decorative border of small, circular stamps or seals, which are evenly spaced around the perimeter of the handwritten content.

Handwritten text in Arabic script, located at the bottom center of the page. It appears to be a signature or a concluding note, written in a similar cursive style to the main text. The text is less dense than the main body and is positioned below the circular arrangement of text.
